Social Security

How would you protect Social Security for today's seniors and strengthen it for future generations?

AARP's Position:

Social Security should continue to guarantee that Americans who work and pay into the system receive benefits based on what they earn and contribute. Benefits should keep up with inflation and last for as long as an individual lives. We must strengthen Social Security for the future and protect benefits for people who count on them most, including surviving spouses and families, lower-wage workers, and disabled individuals who no longer can work. Social Security must be put on stable financial ground, but any adjustments should be implemented gradually so changes do not impact those in or near retirement.

Peter O. Anderson (Dem):

AARP did extensive research but was unable to find any public statement on this issue by July 11, 2014.

Ed R. Royce (Rep):

I would like to see Social Security be there for future generations. The first thing that needs to be done is to preserve Social Security and stop spending money on other unnecessary programs. Another aspect of preserving Social Security is working to cut out the waste, fraud and abuse associated with the administering of Social Security itself. (Source: Edward R. Medicare

How would you put Medicare on stronger financial ground and protect today's seniors and future retirees from rising health costs?

AARP's Position:

Medicare should be strengthened and improved so both current and future generations can count on having access to high-quality, affordable coverage. Medicare should continue to guarantee a specific set of benefits that are affordable and meet a person's health care needs. Medicare should offer choices that ensure access to high-quality health care. Medicare should improve the quality, safety, and efficiency of care by emphasizing value and cracking down on fraud, waste, and abuse.

Ed R. Royce (Rep):

Medicare will be a greater challenge[...]Taxpayers and beneficiaries will be faced with enormous burdens in trying to sustain the Medicare program as it is today. I am fighting for long-term changes in Medicare that will update the program and protect its beneficiaries. I support empowering beneficiaries to choose the health care plan that best fits their own needs. I want to maintain and increase Medicare beneficiaries' range of options. We need a Medicare system that offers choices and competition among health plans, and has less bureaucracy, more efficiency, and lower costs. (Source: Edward R. Royce Website, <http://ow.ly/c3R5x>)

Financial Security

How would you help Americans save so they can secure their future and live independently as they age?

AARP's Position:

More opportunities and incentives should be available for all Americans to plan and save so they can have a more secure future. Freedom from age discrimination is a fundamental right and critical to Americans' ability to have a secure retirement. Every worker should be treated fairly, regardless of age. We need to support family caregivers who make it possible for more seniors to live in their homes and communities, where they want, rather than taxpayers and struggling families paying for costlier care.

Peter O. Anderson (Dem):

Ed R. Royce (Rep):

If the current Social Security system were maintained as it is, it would not provide future generations with an adequate retirement. At best it would make an already low pension only marginally better. This is why I want to encourage saving and investing for retirement. Now is the time to fix this problem, so younger Americans are able to live more comfortably in their retirement years. (Source: Edward R. Royce Website, <http://ow.ly/c3R5x>)
