Social Security

How would you protect Social Security for today's seniors and strengthen it for future generations?

AARP's Position:

Social Security should continue to guarantee that Americans who work and pay into the system receive benefits based on what they earn and contribute. Benefits should keep up with inflation and last for as long as an individual lives. We must strengthen Social Security for the future and protect benefits for people who count on them most, including surviving spouses and families, lower-wage workers, and disabled individuals who no longer can work. Social Security must be put on stable financial ground, but any adjustments should be implemented gradually so changes do not impact those in or near retirement.

John C. Carney Jr. (Dem):

Social Security isn't the cause of our nation's fiscal problems. We need to make sure it's around for future generations, and we have to start from the premise that we shouldn't use Social Security to balance the budget. (Source: Delmarvanow, <http://goo.gl/H1FmWQ>)

Medicare

How would you put Medicare on stronger financial ground and protect today's seniors and future retirees from rising health costs?

AARP's Position:

Medicare should be strengthened and improved so both current and future generations can count on having access to high-quality, affordable coverage. Medicare should continue to guarantee a specific set of benefits that are affordable and meet a person's health care needs. Medicare should offer choices that ensure access to high-quality health care. Medicare should improve the quality, safety, and efficiency of care by emphasizing value and cracking down on fraud, waste, and abuse.

John C. Carney Jr. (Dem):

[...] eliminate waste, fraud, and abuse in the Medicare system to reduce the deficit. We need to replace that talk with action. The FAST Act is a real solution that addresses the problem. This bipartisan legislation will make it much harder to commit Medicare fraud and will save billions in costs without cutting benefits to seniors. I will continue to look for ways to reduce the cost of healthcare through the increased use of medical technology, promoting coordination of care, and experimenting with new funding mechanisms that encourage providers to focus on the quality of the healthcare they deliver, not the quantity (Source: Rep. Financial Security

How would you help Americans save so they can secure their future and live independently as they age?

AARP's Position:

More opportunities and incentives should be available for all Americans to plan and save so they can have a more secure future. Freedom from age discrimination is a fundamental right and critical to Americans' ability to have a secure retirement. Every worker should be treated fairly, regardless of age. We need to support family caregivers who make it possible for more seniors to live in their homes and communities, where they want, rather than taxpayers and struggling families paying for costlier care.

John C. Carney Jr. (Dem):

I support efforts to create a welcoming environment for business start-ups and new domestic manufacturing in the U.S., and particularly the state of Delaware. (Source: Rep. Carney's Congressional Website, <http://ow.ly/xx4e7>)
