Social Security

How would you protect Social Security for today's seniors and strengthen it for future generations?

AARP's Position:

Social Security should continue to guarantee that Americans who work and pay into the system receive benefits based on what they earn and contribute. Benefits should keep up with inflation and last for as long as an individual lives. We must strengthen Social Security for the future and protect benefits for people who count on them most, including surviving spouses and families, lower-wage workers, and disabled individuals who no longer can work. Social Security must be put on stable financial ground, but any adjustments should be implemented gradually so changes do not impact those in or near retirement.

Tim A. Huelskamp (Rep):

The time to strengthen and save Social Security is now. Every year that we wait, the harder it becomes to make the system solvent for our children and grandchildren. While we have an obligation to fulfill the mission of retirement security promised to our current and near retirees, we have an equal obligation to ensure today's younger workers have certainty while making their retirement plans. Medicare

How would you put Medicare on stronger financial ground and protect today's seniors and future retirees from rising health costs?

AARP's Position:

Medicare should be strengthened and improved so both current and future generations can count on having access to high-quality, affordable coverage. Medicare should continue to guarantee a specific set of benefits that are affordable and meet a person's health care needs. Medicare should offer choices that ensure access to high-quality health care. Medicare should improve the quality, safety, and efficiency of care by emphasizing value and cracking down on fraud, waste, and abuse.

Tim A. Huelskamp (Rep):

Medicare also needs strengthening and saving. Recent House budgets offered some bold reforms of Medicare, one of which is to create a competitive marketplace for future Medicare beneficiaries that encourages competition and therefore leads to lower costs. By acting now, we can save and secure Medicare for generations to come. (Source: Huelskamp's Congressional Site, <http://ow.ly/xxdzu>)

Financial Security

How would you help Americans save so they can secure their future and live independently as they age?

AARP's Position:

More opportunities and incentives should be available for all Americans to plan and save so they can have a more secure future. Freedom from age discrimination is a fundamental right and critical to Americans' ability to have a secure retirement. Every worker should be treated fairly, regardless of age. We need to support family caregivers who make it possible for more seniors to live in their homes and communities, where they want, rather than taxpayers and struggling families paying for costlier care.

Tim A. Huelskamp (Rep):

Government does not and cannot create economic prosperity, but unfortunately it can stand in the way of a strong economy and job growth. A complicated tax code, over-regulation, ObamaCare, and overall fiscal uncertainty hinder the ability of working Americans and all businesses, especially small businesses, to prosper.
