Social Security

How would you protect Social Security for today's seniors and strengthen it for future generations?

AARP's Position:

Social Security should continue to guarantee that Americans who work and pay into the system receive benefits based on what they earn and contribute. Benefits should keep up with inflation and last for as long as an individual lives. We must strengthen Social Security for the future and protect benefits for people who count on them most, including surviving spouses and families, lower-wage workers, and disabled individuals who no longer can work. Social Security must be put on stable financial ground, but any adjustments should be implemented gradually so changes do not impact those in or near retirement.

Charles A. Long (Rep):

AARP did extensive research but was unable to find any public statement on this issue by July 11, 2014.

John P. Sarbanes (Dem):

Social Security has made it possible for millions of Americans to live with security and dignity in their retirement. It has also provided a safety net for widows, children who have lost a parent, and disabled workers. For these reasons, Congressman Sarbanes strongly believes that we must keep our commitments to retirees and provide them with the income security that they were promised, while making the common sense reforms to ensure the program's long term solvency. Medicare

How would you put Medicare on stronger financial ground and protect today's seniors and future retirees from rising health costs?

AARP's Position:

Medicare should be strengthened and improved so both current and future generations can count on having access to high-quality, affordable coverage. Medicare should continue to guarantee a specific set of benefits that are affordable and meet a person's health care needs. Medicare should offer choices that ensure access to high-quality health care. Medicare should improve the quality, safety, and efficiency of care by emphasizing value and cracking down on fraud, waste, and abuse.

John P. Sarbanes (Dem):

Congressman Sarbanes is committed to providing high quality health coverage to America's seniors through Medicare. The health care reform law has made good progress in weeding out waste, fraud, and abuse, which helps to lower overall costs and expand coverage for the millions of Americans who depend on it. Financial Security

How would you help Americans save so they can secure their future and live independently as they age?

AARP's Position:

More opportunities and incentives should be available for all Americans to plan and save so they can have a more secure future. Freedom from age discrimination is a fundamental right and critical to Americans' ability to have a secure retirement. Every worker should be treated fairly, regardless of age. We need to support family caregivers who make it possible for more seniors to live in their homes and communities, where they want, rather than taxpayers and struggling families paying for costlier care.

John P. Sarbanes (Dem):

Protecting and improving the retirement security of all Americans is a top priority for Congressman Sarbanes. So in addition to protecting Social Security for current and future retirees, Congressman Sarbanes is committed to strengthening our private retirement savings system, securing the promise of defined benefit pension plans, expanding access to workplace savings accounts and improving tax incentives to help more Americans build a nest egg for retirement.
