Social Security

How would you protect Social Security for today's seniors and strengthen it for future generations?

AARP's Position:

Social Security should continue to guarantee that Americans who work and pay into the system receive benefits based on what they earn and contribute. Benefits should keep up with inflation and last for as long as an individual lives. We must strengthen Social Security for the future and protect benefits for people who count on them most, including surviving spouses and families, lower-wage workers, and disabled individuals who no longer can work. Social Security must be put on stable financial ground, but any adjustments should be implemented gradually so changes do not impact those in or near retirement.

Frank Briscoe Jr. (Dem):

AARP did extensive research but was unable to find any public statement on this issue by July 11, 2014.

Pete G. Olson (Rep):

Seniors who were promised Social Security deserve better. Our children and grandchildren deserve a future that is not burdened with paying off a crushing debt we passed on to them. And the taxpayers deserve a government that lives within its means. (Source: Congressman Olson's official site; <http://ow.ly/ckZuO>)

Medicare

How would you put Medicare on stronger financial ground and protect today's seniors and future retirees from rising health costs?

AARP's Position:

Medicare should be strengthened and improved so both current and future generations can count on having access to high-quality, affordable coverage. Medicare should continue to guarantee a specific set of benefits that are affordable and meet a person's health care needs. Medicare should offer choices that ensure access to high-quality health care. Medicare should improve the quality, safety, and efficiency of care by emphasizing value and cracking down on fraud, waste, and abuse.

Pete G. Olson (Rep):

Additionally, Social Security and Medicare - our promise to each senior - has been threatened by policies of spending and taxation that have created an unsustainable and crushing economy. We must explore every option to protect the solvency of these programs by enacting sensible reforms that will protect and preserve these programs. The stark reality is that we cannot continue business as usual. (Source: Congressman Olson's official site; <http://ow.ly/ckZuO>)

Financial Security

How would you help Americans save so they can secure their future and live independently as they age?

AARP's Position:

More opportunities and incentives should be available for all Americans to plan and save so they can have a more secure future. Freedom from age discrimination is a fundamental right and critical to Americans' ability to have a secure retirement. Every worker should be treated fairly, regardless of age. We need to support family caregivers who make it possible for more seniors to live in their homes and communities, where they want, rather than taxpayers and struggling families paying for costlier care.

Pete G. Olson (Rep):

With millions of Americans either underemployed or out of work, a principal focus of our government needs to be helping to get the economy moving again...we need to empower small businesses and give them greater certainty about the future by... Lowering individual tax rates so our families can keep more of what they earn and be able to manage the planning for their own futures rather than relying on the government (Source: Pete Olson for Congress; <http://ow.ly/ckZ32>)
