Social Security

How would you protect Social Security for today's seniors and strengthen it for future generations?

AARP's Position:

Social Security should continue to guarantee that Americans who work and pay into the system receive benefits based on what they earn and contribute. Benefits should keep up with inflation and last for as long as an individual lives. We must strengthen Social Security for the future and protect benefits for people who count on them most, including surviving spouses and families, lower-wage workers, and disabled individuals who no longer can work. Social Security must be put on stable financial ground, but any adjustments should be implemented gradually so changes do not impact those in or near retirement.

Elliott G. Fausz (Dem):

AARP did extensive research but was unable to find any public statement on this issue by July 11, 2014.

Randy Forbes (Rep):

One of our top priorities should be to protect our nation's seniors by preserving Medicare and Social Security. This can be done in a responsible fiscal fashion that does not harm seniors or future generations of Americans. Congressman Forbes has cosponsored the Social Security Preservation Act, H.R. 219. This bill ensures that Social Security funds are used only to pay Social Security benefits, preventing funds from this critical program from being diverted to other programs. Read more. Medicare

How would you put Medicare on stronger financial ground and protect today's seniors and future retirees from rising health costs?

AARP's Position:

Medicare should be strengthened and improved so both current and future generations can count on having access to high-quality, affordable coverage. Medicare should continue to guarantee a specific set of benefits that are affordable and meet a person's health care needs. Medicare should offer choices that ensure access to high-quality health care. Medicare should improve the quality, safety, and efficiency of care by emphasizing value and cracking down on fraud, waste, and abuse.

Financial Security

How would you help Americans save so they can secure their future and live independently as they age?

AARP's Position:

More opportunities and incentives should be available for all Americans to plan and save so they can have a more secure future. Freedom from age discrimination is a fundamental right and critical to Americans' ability to have a secure retirement. Every worker should be treated fairly, regardless of age. We need to support family caregivers who make it possible for more seniors to live in their homes and communities, where they want, rather than taxpayers and struggling families paying for costlier care.

Elliott G. Fausz (Dem):

Every bust, American tax payers are stuck holding that bag. We need investment in our future. We need to decide who we want to be, set the bar high, and go for it. Our future is in the hands of our younger generation who understand computer and technology is the boom economy of tomorrow. And tech jobs are the future of the 4th District. And there are a ton of jobs to be had by expanding the ports in Hampton Roads. (Source: Fausz Campaign Site <http://goo.gl/ysd5bv>)

Randy Forbes (Rep):

Congressman Forbes believes there is a simple truth when it comes to job creation in America: real solutions create real growth that generates real jobs. In order to make this happen, government needs to get out of the way and provide the freedom for small businesses to work, earn, and achieve. Read his memorandum on jobs in Virginia's Fourth District. (Source: Forbes Congressional Site, <http://ow.ly/xTpc0>)
