Social Security

How would you protect Social Security for today's seniors and strengthen it for future generations?

AARP's Position:

Social Security should continue to guarantee that Americans who work and pay into the system receive benefits based on what they earn and contribute. Benefits should keep up with inflation and last for as long as an individual lives. We must strengthen Social Security for the future and protect benefits for people who count on them most, including surviving spouses and families, lower-wage workers, and disabled individuals who no longer can work. Social Security must be put on stable financial ground, but any adjustments should be implemented gradually so changes do not impact those in or near retirement.

Mark H. Bray (I):

AARP did extensive research but was unable to find any public statement on this issue by July 11, 2014.

Mo Brooks (Rep):

Social Security benefits should be protected. I believe the best way to fund Social Security obligations is not by raising taxes. Rather, we must have sound economic policies that grow our economy and generate sufficient tax revenues to pay for the commitments we have made to our elderly. I do not now and I never have supported privatization of Social Security...In addition to protecting Social Security, Congress must enact policies that encourage citizens to save during their working years... Medicare

How would you put Medicare on stronger financial ground and protect today's seniors and future retirees from rising health costs?

AARP's Position:

Medicare should be strengthened and improved so both current and future generations can count on having access to high-quality, affordable coverage. Medicare should continue to guarantee a specific set of benefits that are affordable and meet a person's health care needs. Medicare should offer choices that ensure access to high-quality health care. Medicare should improve the quality, safety, and efficiency of care by emphasizing value and cracking down on fraud, waste, and abuse.

Mo Brooks (Rep):

Medicare fraud and abuse is estimated to cost more than $60 billion a year, an unconscionable sum that inflates the cost of the program and abuses seniors. I support common-sense solutions like front-end verification that would immediately crack down on those who would cheat seniors this way [...] Our seniors should always be assured access to their doctors. However, the payment formula for physicians under Medicare is flawed and exacerbates a growing physician shortage for Medicare beneficiaries. Cost savings in Medicare should not be borne solely by cuts to physicians. (Source: Mo Brooks for Congress; <http://ow.ly/cnoYA>)

Financial Security

How would you help Americans save so they can secure their future and live independently as they age?

AARP's Position:

More opportunities and incentives should be available for all Americans to plan and save so they can have a more secure future. Freedom from age discrimination is a fundamental right and critical to Americans' ability to have a secure retirement. Every worker should be treated fairly, regardless of age. We need to support family caregivers who make it possible for more seniors to live in their homes and communities, where they want, rather than taxpayers and struggling families paying for costlier care.

Mo Brooks (Rep):

In addition to protecting Social Security, Congress must enact policies that encourage citizens to save during their working years so that those savings, when coupled with Social Security benefits, will provide adequate income for their senior years.
